RFA's line of ultra-miniature broadband doubly balanced mixers and IF hybrids cover the frequency range of 0.2 to 4,000 MHz. These miniature models housed in a T0-33 case are the smallest known and their low profile makes them completely compatible transistors and microcircuits commonly used in high density packaging. These mixers feature greater than a thousand to one bandwidth, extremely low conversion efficiency, high isolation, and low spurious products. Complementing the minature line is a line of high performance standard size mixers, hybrids and quadrature hybrids.

S.O.S. manufactures "CHEMTRON" (trademark) reed relays which offer proven reliability, smaller size, and maximum versatility. Over 200 stocked items mean a better selection and faster delivery. The smallest "CHEMTRON" reed relay series occupies less P.C. space than a dual in-line. I.C. package, can be driven by an I.C., and has SPST-NO contacts rated at 4VA. Write or call S.O.S. for a brochure catalog that describes all the "CHEMTRON" reed relays.

Stow Laboratories' PITRAN is a pressure-sensitive transistor (size: TO-46 can) capable of producing a full 2 volt linear output for inputs as low as .1 psid differential pressure, without amplification (Model PT-L2). Small size, high output and fast response account for its wide acceptance in industrial control and biomedical fields. Typical applications include: blood pressure and flow sensors, computer peripheral sensing and control, meteorological and altitude measurement and fluidic monitors. Quantity prices now available make the PITRAN candidate for many production applications. Models with linear ranges of up to 20 psi are currently on hand; higher ranges will become available periodically.

Thomson-CSF Electron Tubes, Inc. markets a complete line of electron tubes:
Power grid tubes for industrial equipment and radar and TV broadcasting. High power pulsed tubes are also used for low frequency radars, linear particle accelerators and switching applications.
Microwave tubes such as magnetrons, crossed-field amplifiers, high power and reflex klystrons, traveling wave tubes, backward-wave oscillators. Two new developments are the Teratron (wide-band klystron) and the Carpitron (locked BWO for amplifying a frequency-modulated signal).
Image and storage tubes such as cathode-ray tubes for radar and computer displays and instrument use, scan-converters, barrier-grid and direct-view storage tubes. Two new developments are a 150-MHz cathode-ray tube for high frequency oscilloscopes and a dual-color storage tube for radar display.
In addition to these three families of tubes, the Electron Tube Group of Thomson-CSF is also very active in the field of X-ray image intensifiers and gas lasers.

Our Electron Devices Division has a complete line of Image Intensifier and Infra-red Converter Tubes for every low light level application. Whether your requirement is for a simple Image Converter, a straight through Image Intensifier, or the more complex variable magnification Image Intensifiers, the Electron Devices Division can fill your needs. If our present production does not meet your needs, our Engineering Group can develop a tube to your specific requirements.

Jack Berman stages a teach-in!

We mix a lot of learning with a little love and call it The Berman Institute of Agreeable Selling. It's our protest against "bad-habit selling" of electronic components. Who digs it? Distributor sales personnel from all over southern California and Arizona who gather at our new Inglewood campus. Here Professor Berman and a faculty of 14 "agreeable" sales engineers demonstrate proven sales techniques and conduct College of Knowledge Seminars dealing in depth with our principals' products. It's a great refresher for our distributors' salesmen who want to turn on and do their own thing a lot better!

12 WAYS

the new 1970 MASTER helps engineers and purchasing agents

1. Saves design time — the product you are looking for is illustrated and completely described.
2. Saves "shopping" time — all similar products are cataloged in a particular product section; it's simple to make a rapid decision.
3. Short-cuts delivery time — products shown in The MASTER are available from local distributors — just a phone call away.
4. Speeds inter-company communications — wide distribution of The MASTER at your company means other engineers, purchasing agents and buyers have a copy — thus you have a common frame of reference.
5. Saves buying time — descriptions, specifications so complete, you can purchase directly from information in The MASTER.
6. Cuts production cost — big illustrations, detailed specs, wide variety help you locate standard items that meet your requirements. Eliminates need to order a custom item.
7. Aids in selecting right product — comparison of specs, features, prices of several makes of similar-type products is simplified.
8. Keeps production lines moving — you can get that much needed product that's holding up production from your local distributor's stock.
9. Saves prototype and development time — helps you locate a standard product available for off-the-shelf delivery from a local distributor.
10. Locates many items not contained in smaller catalogs because it is the world's biggest electronic catalog of standard items.
11. Makes it easy for you to find the product you want immediately — 35 product sections and complete index make it also the easiest to use.
12. Saves time in writing specifications — information is so complete, so detailed.

Write — call — rush to your local electronic distributor — see list on following pages

12 WAYS

the new 1970 MASTER helps engineers and purchasing agents

1. Saves design time — the product you are looking for is illustrated and completely described.
2. Saves "shopping" time — all similar products are cataloged in a particular product section; it's simple to make a rapid decision.
3. Short-cuts delivery time — products shown in The MASTER are available from local distributors — just a phone call away.
4. Speeds inter-company communications — wide distribution of The MASTER at your company means other engineers, purchasing agents and buyers have a copy — thus you have a common frame of reference.
5. Saves buying time — descriptions, specifications so complete, you can purchase directly from information in The MASTER.
6. Cuts production cost — big illustrations, detailed specs, wide variety help you locate standard items that meet your requirements. Eliminates need to order a custom item.
7. Aids in selecting right product — comparison of specs, features, prices of several makes of similar-type products is simplified.
8. Keeps production lines moving — you can get that much needed product that's holding up production from your local distributor's stock.
9. Saves prototype and development time — helps you locate a standard product available off-the-shelf delivery from a local distributor.
10. Locates many items not contained in smaller catalogs because it is the world's biggest electronic catalog of standard items.
11. Makes it easy for you to find the product you want immediately — 35 product sections and complete index make it also the easiest to use.
12. Saves time in writing specifications — information is so complete, so detailed.
